Taxes -- property mix-up

Road, Waveland, MS.

Just last month, she got two certified letters from the Hancock County Chancery Clerk's office telling her that the property which was "supposed to be owned by you" was sold for taxes in August 2000. And the letter gave her until March 15, 2004 to "redeem" the title by paying past due taxes on it.

But that news was way too late for Goodyear-Hahne, who bought back the title almost a year ago, not from the government but from a title company which had bought it in 2002.

Goodyear-Hahne faced a series of befuddling, expensive roadblocks and unanswered questions in trying to find out what had happened to her ownership, how it happened, and what could be done to recover her title. She even received two conflicting opinions on the matter from the Mississippi Attorney General's office.

Goodyear-Hahne is one of hundreds of local citizens whose property went on the auction block for taxes that came due for the year 1999.

The properties were sold to various purchasers in an annual tax sale in August 2000. And two years later, the tax sale transactions "matured," meaning that those purchasers were eligible to full titles because the original owners hadn't come forward to pay off their tax tabs.

There was a major glitch in the tax collection/redemption system afoot, however, and officials still are straightening it out. For Goodyear-Hahne, the corrective measures simply came too late.

The unusual situation took shape when officials of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Picayune arranged with Hancock County Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar for a county take-over of tax sale redemptions.

Officials hoped that by consolidating the redemption office functions, tax payers would be spared the trouble of having to travel to different government entities to clear up past due taxes. Under consolidated tax billing, property owners are billed for city, county and school taxes all in one bill, and all payable to the county tax collector's office.

The tax redemption function -- collecting past due taxes on properties that have been "sold" at annual tax sales -- went to Kellar 2001. But his office didn't send out notices, as required by state law, that the two-year waiting period from the 2000 tax sale was about to expire in August, 2002. Normally, that notice gives property owners one last chance to pay up past due taxes and interest, before losing title.

Kellar maintains that the cities incorrectly assumed that he would perform that notification process for the tax sale that took place before he became the head of the tax redemption process.

Whatever the reason,

Goodyear-Hahne and hundreds of other property owners received no notice that their titles were about to evaporate legally when the two-year deadline arrived.

She had bought the 121 Aiken in 1998, and thought that her mortgage company paid the taxes on it. She said she never received a tax bill, and certainly received no notice that the property had been bought up in a tax sale.

The first hint she had that something was amiss was when she and her new husband, Bill Hahne, tried to refinance 121 Aiken, in September 2002, taking advantage of low mortgage rates. Her closing attorney found a tax lien on the books.

"He said there had been a tax sale on the house and we'd have to find out who bought it," she said of the attorney, Julian Byrnes.

Goodyear-Hahne discovered the sale involved a $137.13 tax bill owed to Waveland and a school tax of $345.57 owed to Bay St. Louis. And, she found out that the property not only had been sold at the tax sale, it had subsequently passed hands afterwards, ending up as property of Mississippi Tax Deeds.

Kellar's office had been able to tell her that the property had sold to the "Pacific Co.," an out-of-state entity. It was only when the photographer showed up in her yard that Goodyear-Hahne learned that Mississippi Tax Deeds was putting the house up for sale.

After that revelation in February, she scrambled for advice: from her son, who's an attorney practicing in another state; from Kellar himself, and from a local attorney she hired. All advised that she purchase the property back from Mississippi Tax Deeds, and obtain a "quit claim" deed giving her title, she said.

Getting a quit claim deed would clear the air legally, allowing the mortgage refinancing to proceed, Goodyear-Hahne said she was advised.

So, she contacted Mississippi Tax Deeds and was given a put a price of almost $2,600 on the house, including a $98 document fee, and a short deadline to buy the house back. Six weeks passed before the quit claim deed arrived, she said, but that was not the end of it.

Her attorney noted that the deed applied only to one of the two past due tax bills involved, so she had to buy a second quit claim deed, costing another $98 processing fee. Six more weeks passed before she hired an attorney to demand delivery of the second quit claim document.

It was now March, 2003. The refinancing went through.

More than six months later, city and county officials officially recognized that "a failure to provide the statutory notice required to be given to owners of record prior to maturity of an unre-

Still, she says, the bottom line is the same. "I don't want to file suit and make millions of dollars...All I want is my money back."

Kellar is sympathetic with Goodyear-Hahne's predicament, but says he knows of nothing he or his office can do about it. He said he's even checked with his personal attorney on the matter.

"What brought all of this about was peoples' failure to pay taxes," Kellar said. "I am not sure of her recourse, if any."

Goodyear-Hahne is executive director of the Gulf Coast branch of the Arthritis Foundation, a member of the Kiwanis Club of Hancock County, and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

A graduate of Eastern New Mexico University, she taught at the University of Louisiana at Hammond (formerly known as Southeastern Louisiana University) for four years before moving to the Gulf Coast several years ago.

Woman affected by property tax goof wants to know why she has no recourse

BY MARY G. SEILEY

She speaks kindly of Hancock County Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar. But Phyllis Goodyear-Hahne is far from a happy constituent or contented taxpayer.

Frankly, she says, "my property was sold out from under me" in a bureaucratic bungle that cost her thousands of dollars and months of anguish.

And while she now is happy to have reclaimed title to her property at issue, Goodyear-Hahne sees a huge unfairness in the process. She worries that elderly, or less persistent property owners, will have suffered even bigger losses than she.

She is one of hundreds of property owners whose past-due 1999 taxes led to tax sales in 2000. While she didn't know that taxes were owed on her house, she acknowledged that property owners should be diligent in making sure all's taken care of at the tax office.

On the other hand, the government by law has to notify a property owner, before passing title through tax sales. For the tax sale of 2000, that didn't happen.

Goodyear-Hahne bought her home back from a company which bought it through the tax sale. Now she learns that she didn't have to go that route at all, because officials have nullified those tax sale conveyances.

Twice, she asked the state attorney general's office for help in the matter, outlining every step in a bewildering, expensive trek to regain her title.

"How do all those other people who don't know about these unnotified tax claims find out?" she asked in one letter. "When their parent dies and the home is not theirs anymore? Or when their home appears on a commercial real estate /TV show or internet...FOR SALE?"

Last October, Kyle Wilson of the attorney general's public integrity division told Goodyear-Hahne that there is no state law suggesting that a county must notify a property owner of pending tax sales.

She wasn't satisfied with that answer, and wrote back. In December, special assistant attorney general Ed Snyder had quite a different view.

"State law is abundantly clear that the redemption notice is to be given in a timely manner, by personal service, by certified or registered mail, and by publication in an appropriate newspaper... When claiming lack of notice in the matter of a tax sale, the property owner has the option to file suit and request the proper court to void the tax sale and the tax deed as was successfully done in a recent case decided by the Supreme Court," he wrote.

Goodyear-Hahne has praise for Kellar's willingness to listen to her story. "In my heart, I really do think he cares about working it out," she said of Kellar.

Crack -- arrest

Sheriff Steve Garber.

Kenneth L. Lee, 22, and Emanuel Maurice Lee, 20, both of 10530 3 Rivers Road, Gulfport, were charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver, Agent Johnny Alison, who is in charge of the case said.

Bond was set at $130,000 for Kenneth L. Lee and $175,000 for Emanuel Maurice Lee, according to jail records, with Kenneth, Lee being held for the Mississippi Department of Corrections.

Agent Malley reported weighing approximately 27 grams of crack cocaine at the drug bust.

Allison indicated agents worked several days, before making the bust, which also involved in the seizure of a Ford Explorer.

Hancock Chief Investigator Kenny Hurt and Investigator Matt Barnett searched the Explorer finding a loaded 38 revolver and are checking to see if several power tools in the vehicle may have been stolen too.

Kenneth Lee had a semi-automatic pistol on him when the bust was made, agents said and they also seized and undetermined amount of cash.

Hancock deputies transported the two suspects to the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility where they were lodged.

deemed tax sale" had occurred.

A search of the records turned up 41 properties at that time which had passed hands through the faulty system, and officials declared that those transactions were void.

Officials then re-set the "redemption" clock, giving property owners until March 15, 2004 to redeem their property which was sold at the August 2000 tax sale.

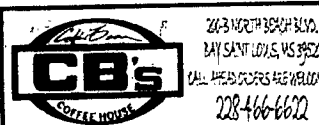

That's why Goodyear-Hahne got those notices in the mail just before Christmas.

Peterman

Peterman was named a first team All-American by Sports Illustrated, The Sporting News, ESPN/Coaches Poll, Rivals.com, and the Atlanta Touchdown Club. He was chosen second team All-America by the Associated Press. He also earned first team All-SEC by both the AP and the SEC Coaches.

Peterman stated, "My career really ended like a fairy tale. Since I have been at LSU, I have made some wonderful friends and this title made everything worth while. The loss to Florida earlier in the season helped us redirect ourselves. We knew we should have won that game. The players and coaches had put too much effort into this year for us to play the way we did against Florida."

Due to his experience with college football, Peterman has traveled all over the country representing Waveland, SSC and LSU. Some of the places that dot Peterman's atlas are Arizona, Virginia, and Florida. Peterman has also had the benefit of having one coach for his four years in both high school and college - which cannot always be said due to the tumultuous changes each year in college football. He played all four years under Nick Saban. Peterman recalled, "Nick Saban is the captain of this ship. He is a hands-on coach. Everything we do is working toward winning a football game no matter if it is in the film room, on the practice field, or in our classes at school. He is a perfectionist and it is done his way. He is a model of leadership."

Now that his collegiate playing days are over, what is next for Stephen Peterman? Currently, he is working out twice a day with a NFL strength and conditioning coach. He is preparing for the Senior Bowl in Mobile where he will get his first chance at impressing some NFL coaches and scouts playing with and against the best in college football.

Following the Senior Bowl experience, Peterman will head to Atlanta on March 6 for an All-American Award presentation. Then, he begins final preparations for the NFL Combine in Indianapolis.

Peterman is not focusing on where he is being said that he will be drafted because he believes that he needs to keep working to give an NFL team the confidence to draft him. He stated, "I am not listening to where everyone says I will go. I just want the opportunity to play the game I love at the highest level. To achieve that, like anything in life, you have to go out and earn it. I don't care where I go in the draft or which team drafts me, I just want the opportunity to play. If I had the choice, I would love to play close to home and my family. But, I'll be excited to go anywhere."

Family is the one thing that has meant the most to Peterman during his life. Mom, Dad and sisters were all there for Stephen when he started pee-wee league. And, they have all been there during his time at LSU. Peterman commented, "Being close to my family and playing ball so close to home has helped me become the person that I am today. I would not have achieved what I have without their support. I wouldn't trade them for anything in the world. Also, the community in Hancock County has been so supportive of me. It helped mold me and I thank all the people back home for their support. It would not have been possible without family, friends, former coaches and teachers, and the Brothers of the Sacred Heart. I have one more opportunity, collegiately, to represent LSU. I hope that I will make LSU and all the people back in Waveland proud."

Fred and Pearl Peterman are extremely proud of their youngest child and his success. Fred Peterman stated, "We are just so blessed and very proud of him. He has worked hard and made great choices. All the teams wanted him to come out after his junior year. However, he wanted to be with his teammates his senior year and he worked hard to make it one to remember. He has taken the steps to get himself ready for the NFL and he will get his shot. We are just so very blessed and proud of him."

Looking back over his career, Peterman had many memorable experiences on the gridiron. But, there is one he will always remember. He recalled, "My most memorable experience would have to be Senior Day against Arkansas this year. My family was on the field when I was called out of the tunnel. I presented my mom and wife with a rose and gave a football to my son. It was the first time that my son was on the field with me. It was a very special moment. It is one that I will treasure when my playing days are through."

Waveland board shoots down man's zoning change request

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

There will be no zoning change granted to property owned by Baton Rouge developer Mac Trellis. Trellis had planned to build an 85 unit, three story assisted living facility in downtown Waveland near the beach on Coleman Ave.

Aldermen voted to uphold the Planning and Zoning Commission's recommendation to deny the zoning change request to turn property extending from Coleman Ave. to Terrace Ave. into a parking lot to service the facility.

Overwhelming negative response from area residents prompted the decision to deny Trellis' request. Neighbors said that such a move would disrupt the quiet neighborhood. Trellis said this week that he still plans to develop five lots on Coleman Ave. that are zoned commercial, but declined to reveal the nature of his plans at this time.

In other business:

- Aldermen voted to approve a contract with Compton engineering for a feasibility study regarding the beach front and Garfield Ladner Pier Complex. The study will include a look at a marina project that was proposed several years back, said Compton engineer Jeff Clemens. The project was nixed at that time due to the negative response of beach front residents.

The former Board of Aldermen voted against going forward with the study and put the project on the back burner for their term of office.

- The city and CSX are still at odds about cleanup and repair operations needed as a result of a train derailment in October of 2002. The question as to who should foot the bill could be answered by litigation if an agreement is not reached soon.

The most recent offer by CSX includes an offer to foot the bill for the remaining cleanup and repairs, but only if the city agrees to allow the company to close the Dubuc train crossing in its March round of projects.

City officials said they could not agree to the terms because the two projects had nothing to do with one another and should be approached separately. An executive session and discussion on the matter yielded the same opinion, said city attorney Zach Butterworth. City officials do not want the two issues tied together.

"It seems to me that after a 24 car derailment in the middle of the city that they are getting off light and shouldn't hold us hostage (by linking the two issues)," said Ward 1 Alderman Keith Mitchell.

If the Dubuc rail crossing is closed, the city would be responsible for providing alternate access to residents who use the crossing. This would mean the city would have to foot the bill to construct a new road. Talks are continuing with CSX.

'Fight Annexation Committee' readies for Jan. 23 court date

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

With the next court date in the continuing annexation saga looming in the distance, the Fight Annexation Committee is revving up its efforts to recruit volunteers. The next court date in the process is set for Friday, January 23 at 10 a.m. at the Hancock County Chancery Court. Interested parties should attend the hearing.

In the mean time the committee has set a meeting to discuss the issue and recruit volunteers for Tuesday, January 13 at 6:30 p.m. at the Shoreline Park Civic Association Meeting Room (the old driver's license building) on Kiln DeLisle Rd.

Organizer Johanna Spicuzza said she hopes to recruit volunteers for a variety of tasks with something that everyone can do, from mailing letters to raising funds for a legal defense.

"It's important to show your support now," said Spicuzza. "If you are serious about fighting the annexation then this meeting is the place to be."

Spicuzza, who initiated a petition drive against the proposals, filed that petition with court records at the first court hearing in October. Though citizens do have a right to be heard concerning the issue Spicuzza said her research shows that legal representation is the best shot that residents have for seriously opposing the proposals. She has two attorney's who are willing to step up and take the case, she says, if the retainer fee can be raised.

"If everyone could just contribute a small amount to the fund, we could have that representation," she said. "The contribution would be less than what we would pay in added taxes the first year we are annexed."

Both Waveland and Bay St. Louis have applied to annex a vast amount of territory stretching past the I-10 intersection of Hwy. 603.

Waveland proposes to annex the west side of the Hwy. 603 corridor and adjoining neighborhoods, plus a section of the east side of Hwy. 603 near I-10 and a section north of I-10.

Bay St. Louis proposes to annex both the east and west sides of the Hwy. 603 corridor, all the unincorporated property east of Hwy. 603 and an area north of I-10.

Both cities will appear in court on January 23. For more information on the Fight Annexation Committee call 466-6466.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

Some can't tell the forest – or the Sound – from the trees

I guess there is a first time for everything, as we go about life. Thursday's edition of The Echo was the first time in many, many years that I did not write a column for the issue. There have been a few issues where one was not published for space reasons, but a column was written.

But, at the same time, I think, I had a good reason, as I was 'under the weather' and spent a few days in the hospital. Hancock Medical Center's ER and hospital staff were very good in 'clearing the weather' and getting me back in shape.

Congratulations are in order for our State Representative J.P. Compretta upon his being elected speaker pro tem of the State Representatives.

This is the first time for a State Representative from South Mississippi to hold such a prestigious position.

Having served two dozen years in the Legislature from Hancock County, Compretta is well respected by fellow Representatives from across the state.

Best of luck to J.P. in his new position of leadership in the State of Mississippi.

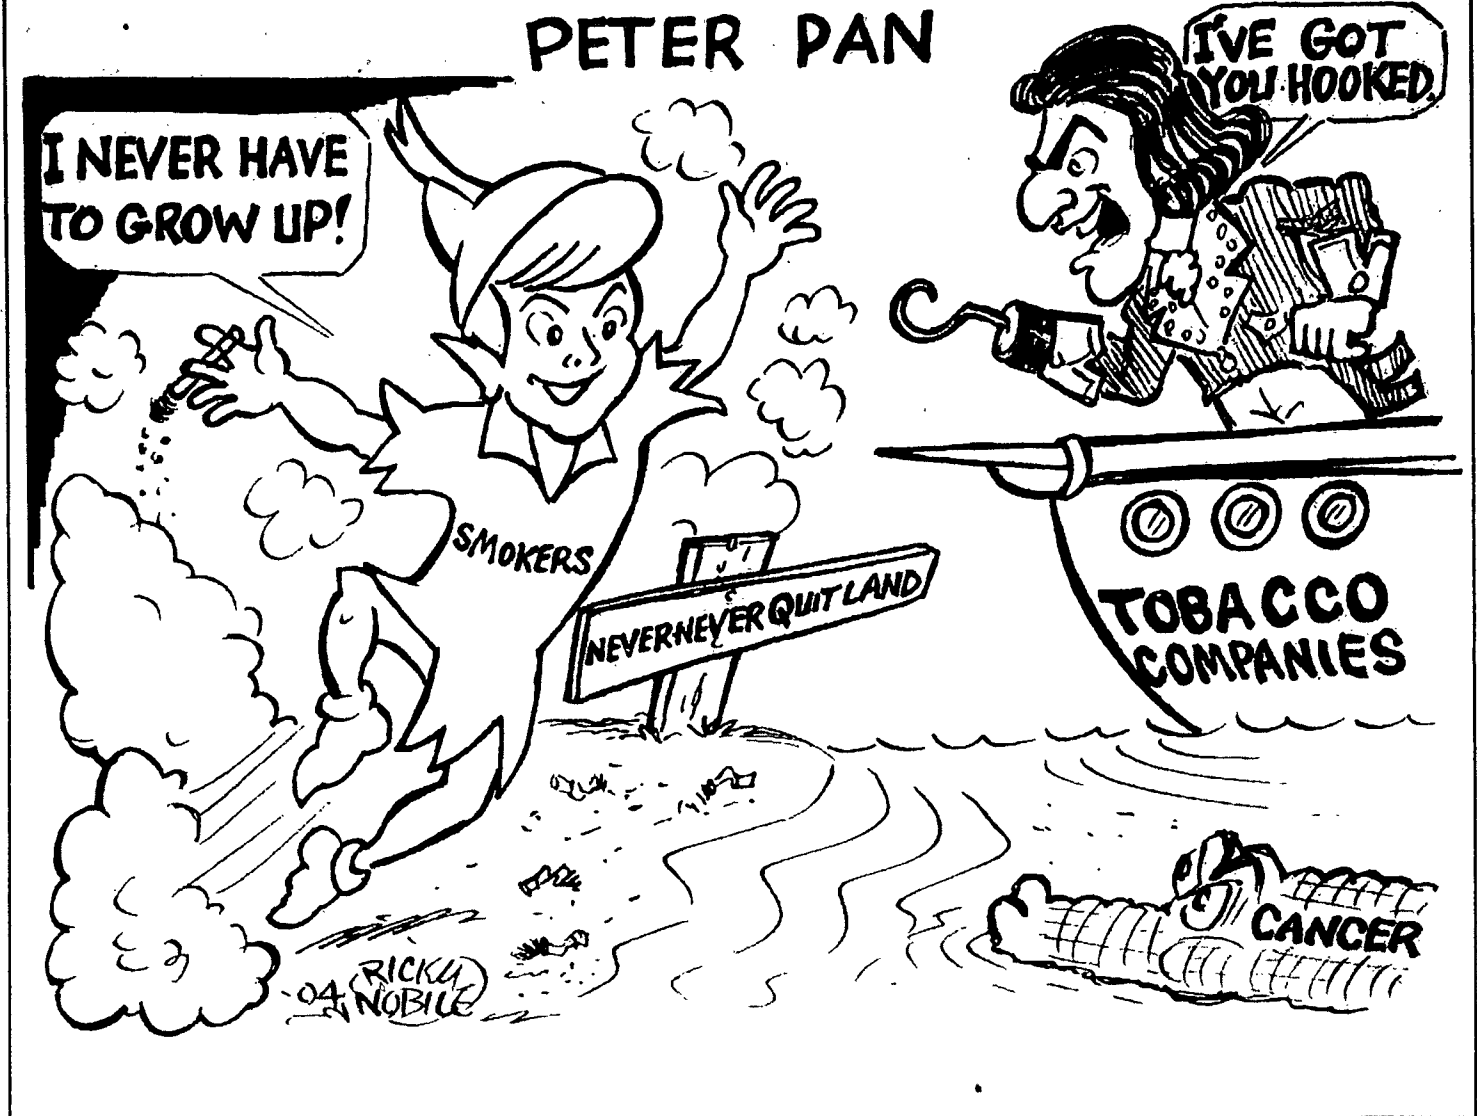

By the way, it seems there are apparently some South Mississippi Representatives who cannot tell the difference from the Mississippi Sound and a Pine Forest.

As we move into 2004, it is good to see that our Hancock County Board of Supervisors is considering drafting a tree ordinance to protect live oaks and magnolias during land clearing and timber harvesting.

Live oaks and magnolias are very slow growing trees and once one is cut, many years are taken for one to replace.

Both Bay St. Louis and Waveland have ordinances protecting certain trees.

Hopefully, Hancock County will have one soon too.

Cancer Society endorses cigarette price increase

To the Editor:
Forty years ago this week, the Surgeon General issued a report on smoking and health.

This report was the first widely publicized study that officially recognized that cigarette smoking is a cause of cancer and other serious and deadly diseases.

The American Cancer Society and its volunteers are marking the anniversary by calling on Mississippi to protect the health of everyone by enacting measures to fight the dangers of smoking. The most effective steps include a 50-cent increase in the state tobacco tax and passing local clean indoor air laws.

We feel that a tobacco tax hike would accomplish two important objectives: raising more than $117 million in additional tax revenue for the state budget and vastly reduce the number of youth smokers. Studies show that those 18 and under are far more sensitive to price increases.

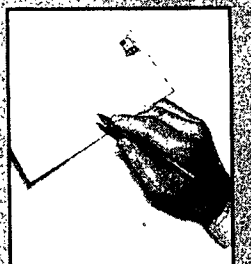

In 1964 people knew very little about the dangers of smoking. We have come a long way from the days of smoke-filled conference rooms, airplanes, and even schools.

Today we know all too well the health impact of using tobacco products not only to the smoker, but also to the people around the smoker. Smoking is the leading cause of preventable death in the United States.

It is the culprit behind 400,000 deaths every year, including 3,000 lung cancer deaths among, otherwise healthy nonsmokers.

The last 40 years we have seen tremendous advances in changing people's beliefs, perceptions and attitudes toward smoking.

Now we are at the next level. In light of this important public health anniversary, our community has the opportunity to protect the health of all workers against the dangers of smoking.

Don't call it a landfill

In the article "Bay woman asks council to fight DuPont landfill" (Thurs., Jan 8, 2004), the waste disposal method referred to is deep-well injection, not a site where rubbish is buried by a bulldozer.

It is also inaccurate to label this an environmental issue.

This is not a case of some rare species that we've never heard of being defended by radical environmentalists. The species at risk is us. Also, the chemical agent we're dealing with here is not something that "has been shown to cause cancer in mice" at some unrealistically high concentration.

Dioxin is a known carcinogen. That is, it will – not may – cause cancer in human beings, even in minute amounts.

To call it a landfill, or categorize concerns about it as an environmental issue is to trivialize it.

In this case we owe it to ourselves and to posterity to get informed about the safety record and reliability of such a system. If it doesn't look good, let's stop it.

Reject DuPont waste disposal plan

To whom it may concern at the US Army Corps of Engineers,

In regard to the application made by the Dupont DeLisle plant to fill 24 acres of wetlands for the construction of a 3.2 acre waste disposal landfill.

It is my desire that you reject this application. I speak for a vast majority of citizens who do not want that facility to inject, dump, or emit any more hazardous, toxic wastes into our beautiful Gulf Coast environment.

The damages caused by decades of bilious "deep well injection" are as yet still not fully ascertained, but demonstrate significant cause for concern.

It is my understanding that, by law, if there are any other avenues for disposal, rather than further foul our magnificent and delicate bay ecology, then they must be utilized.

Apparently, much of this hazardous waste can be reprocessed and marketed. (A flocculating agent from titanium dioxide waste, for instance), and it is methods such as these that should be considered.

Our primary concern; however, is the protection and well-being of our families and community from any further contaminations.

Sincerely,
Sherry and Kevin Webster

Garden Club speaker to share info on saving live oaks at Feb. meeting

Diamondhead Garden Club members make topiaries under the guidance of Ginger Adams of Adams Florist.

BY SUSAN HOLCOMB
Guest Writer

The Diamondhead Garden Club will meet at 10 a.m. on Feb. 18 in the Diamondhead Community Center.

Dr. Glenn Hughes, forestry professor at Mississippi State University Extension Service, will share valuable information on saving our live oaks.

If you are looking for an exciting spring excursion, consider going to Jackson to view the Dresden Exhibit and the Museum of Natural History April 21 and 22.

The trip is open to the public and is sponsored by the Diamondhead Garden Club. The cost per person, based on 35 participants, is $16 (museum tickets), $44 (use of bus), $101 (hotel room occupancy), for a total of $161. The cost of lunch at the museum is unknown.

For further information and/or to make reservations, please call Leila Thiassell at 255-3639.

Caffeine provides a benefit to our gardens. Slugs and snails will avoid your plants if you place coffee grounds or brewed coffee around them.

The grounds add acid for acid-loving plants such as roses, hibiscus, and camellias.

Norman Winter, MSU horticulturalist, recently addressed the proper way to prune crape myrtles. Do not cut any branches larger in diameter than a nickel. Remove any internal twiggy growth. Eliminate criss-crossing branches, seedpods and suckers.

For further information, call Susan Holcomb at 255-8690.

SSC needs an overtime to take Tigers, Mayor's Cup

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws (15-4, 4-1) and the Bay High Tigers (12-6, 3-3) battled for the 2004 Mayor's Cup Trophy on Friday at the Brother Peter Memorial Gymnasium before a packed house. The two teams didn't hold anything back and the fans got more than their money's worth.

The Rocks defeated the Tigers 57-55 in overtime to claim the title.

SSC head coach Jay Ladner stated, "The two teams battled all night. This is how SSC/Bay High games are. All the credit goes to Bay High. They are an outstanding team and Alan Lumpkin is doing a tremendous job with those young men over there. This is our 12th Mayor's Cup victory in 13 years and it was, by far, the toughest one."

"We had four guys foul out in the game and had two to three more in foul trouble. I am proud of the way we persevered in the game."

From the tip-off, the two teams battled basket-for-basket. SSC took an early 4-0 lead before Marquez Singleton nailed a three-pointer at the 5:33 mark to cut the lead to 4-3. Lorenzo Lewis gave Bay High their first lead at 7-6 with 3:59 left in the period when he nailed a bucket in traffic.

SSC jumped back out to a 15-10 late in the first when Rob Murray sank a three-pointer and Ramsey Shawa scored in the paint. However, the Tigers came roaring back and tied the score 15-15 with Singleton's layup with :35 and Lewis' old-fashioned three-point play with :02 remaining in the period.

The Rocks surged in the second period behind the play off the bench of Robert Ray Smith who scored six points in the period. SSC took a 32-25 advantage into halftime.

The Tigers made their adjustments in the locker room and came out and won the third period. Bay High held SSC to just seven points in the third frame and closed the gap to 39-37 by the end of the period.

The fourth period was just a battle. The two teams matched each other basket-for-basket and play-for-play. Neither team enjoyed more than a basket advantage throughout the final period.

Each team had a shot at the end of regulation for the game winner but could not convert.

SSC's Darius Acker got the hot hand in the overtime period as he penetrated the Bay High defense for 6 points. Lorenzo Lewis tied the game for Bay High at 55-55 with two crucial free throws with 1:01 left in the extra frame.

Acker sealed the win with :02 left when he drove the lane and put up his game winner. The MVP of the game for SSC was Darius Acker who finished the game with 24 points. Rob Murray added 10 points in the win. The MVP for Bay High was the entire Tiger squad. Marquez Singleton led Bay High with 17 points followed by Charles Nichols and Lorenzo Lewis with 10 points each.

Bay High head coach Alan Lumpkin commented, "This was a well-played game and I enjoyed the great competition that was displayed on the court. I enjoy coaching against Jay Ladner and his teams because he is so good for basketball down here on the Coast. He has been very helpful to me and our team and is a great ambassador of the game. I thought the two teams played each other shot-for-shot. We gave up our intensity a little bit in the second period and SSC was able to get ahead by seven points. I feel we won the third and fourth periods but the Rocks came alive in the overtime period. We need to learn to be more careful in tight games like these. Neither team disappointed the fans that came out tonight. We just need to get back to work and start plugging away again. This is a very competitive district."

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws host the East Central Hornets on Tuesday, Jan. 13 and the Pass Christian Pirates on Friday, Jan. 16.

The Bay High Tigers travel to Moss Point on Tuesday and host Gautier on Friday.

In earlier action on Jan. 6, the Rocks were defeated by the Gautier Gators on the road 73-56. Rob Murray led SSC with 15 points and Acker chipped in 14 points.

The Bay High Tigers split a pair of games with the Pass Christian Pirates on Tuesday. The Lady Tigers 14-3, 4-0 defeated the Lady Pirates 52-33 behind the complete game of Kendra Reed who had 16 points, 8 rebounds, and 7 steals. Felicia Thomas added 14 points and 4 assists. Kellie Martin led Pass Christian (6-8, 1-2) with 10 points and 10 rebounds.

The Tigers fell to the Pirates (10-5, 3-0) in the boys game 79-63.

Roscoe Forch and Chad Musgrove each scored 22 points to lead the Pirates.

Marquez Singleton and Lorenzo Lewis led Bay High with 18 points each.

In soccer action, the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws (13-1-1) defeated Bay High 8-1 on Tuesday night.

Andrew Smith-Parker and Patrick Donohoe each scored a hat trick for the Rocks. Austin Ladner and Devin Caboni also scored. Ricky Manieri scored the lone goal for the Tigers.

Emergency blood drive planned today

An emergency appeal for blood donors was issued by the American Red Cross on Monday, Jan. 5 as blood supplies for the region fell to only a quarter of one day's supply.

The organization is asking you, your friends and family members to help others now.

The urgent need for blood donors is likely to go on for several more weeks which is the expected length of the current blood shortage.

Local citizens are being asked to step up and provide blood for local patients and not wait for this situation to get any worse.

The shortage stems from low blood collections during most of December and throughout the holidays as well as flu and cold season.

Citizens of Hancock County can do their part to save lives by giving blood on Sunday, Jan. 11.

The Kmart in Waveland has been generous enough to host an emergency blood drive at their store on Highway 90 and Highway 603.

The American Red Cross blood drive will take place from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. The bloodmobile will be parked on the side of Kmart closest to Highway 603. All blood types are needed, especially types O Negative, O Positive, B Negative and B Positive.

The American Red Cross, Alabama and Central Gulf Coast Region, supplies blood to over 100 hospitals in the region including Mississippi Gulf Coast hospitals in Bay St. Louis, Gulfport, Biloxi and Lucedale.

To donate blood you must be 17 years old or older, weigh at least 110 pounds, have not donated blood in the past 56 days and be in good overall health.

You cannot get sick or get a disease from giving blood. All supplies are used only once for you and then destroyed.

For more information about donating blood through the American Red Cross, call 228-896-2217 or visit www.redcross-msgc.com

ROSINA BRENER DR. GEORGE BYRNE DORIS DIAMOND SHAWN MCSWEENEY

ROSINA BRENER

Rosina "Roy" Blumenthal Brener, a resident of Dixie White House in Pass Christian and a former resident of Woodland Village Nursing Center in Diamondhead died Thursday, Jan. 8, 2004, in Pass Christian.

Roy, as she has been affectionately known all of her life, celebrated her 100th birthday on Friday, Dec. 20, 2002, at Woodland Village, surrounded by many former swimmers, friends, and relatives and celebrated her 101st birthday Dec. 20, 2003, at Dixie White House. She was the third child of the late Meyer and Esther Blumenthal and the wife of the late Abe Brener, all of New Orleans. Roy moved to Pass Christian in 1995 with her only child, Jacob Brener.

After graduation from Sophia Wright High School in New Orleans, Roy spent the next 65 years coaching the youthful swimmers of New Orleans. Having learned to swim at the age of 13, swimming became her top priority.

In 1920 she was awarded a certificate of membership in "The Women's Life Saving Corps." In 1921, at the age of 18, she became an examiner for the Red Cross life saving test and was called one of the best swimming instructors east of the Mississippi River.

In 1922 she swam with Johnny Weissmuller, world swim champion, when he attended the opening of the Audubon Park Pool. In 1929 she held an exhibition for the Markham Hotel in Gulfport, MS. She also held such posts as charge of the only two playground pools in the city of New Orleans, at that time; coach of the Audubon Park swimming team for nine years, where she turned out such polished swimmers as Audrey Caire, first girl in the South to win a junior national title; Johanna Bernard, SAAU senior champion, and Tommy Kehoe, who later became of the finest boy swimmers developed in New Orleans.

Two of her outstanding swimmers were Maxine Queyrouse, who later joined the Tulane Swimming Club, and Dale Caplan. Both received the New Orleans Athletic Club Award as the "Outstanding Athletes" of Greater New Orleans. Dale possesses over 100 medals for swimming.

In 1932 Roy was named instructor at City Park pool of the Tee-Pees and formed a group of swimmers known as "Roy's Red Devils." She left Audubon in 1955 to form her own swimming team, the Royettes. Starting from scratch, it did not take her long to produce the Royettes into championship caliber. Besides the competitive side, Mrs. Brener produced many fine shows in synchronized swimming. She is a member of the national AAU committee of synchronized swimming and was named as coach of the United States team in Pan American Olympics in 1963. She was known to many of the youth of New Orleans as much more than a swimming instructor, but a generous lady who gave of her time, taught a code of honesty, fair play, and character.

A quote from the Times Picayune from an anonymous writer said "Many a kid in the Hibernian Rivulet, known as the Irish Channel, would have been without a swim suit if it hadn't been for Roy's generosity. Roy gave much more than service. Let's nominate her for the Gold Seal or, better yet, for the Times-Picayune Loving Cup".

Besides swimming, Roy spent 40 years as a ceramist studying under the famous Leona Nicholson, a 1901 graduate of Newcomb College. Roy recalls fondly spending many hours with her friend, Leona, at the YMHA (Young Men Hebrew Association) studying the art of pottery.

In addition to her husband and parents, Roy was preceded in death by sisters, Mrs. Ernestine Leon of Houston, Texas; Miss Mina Blumenthal; and Mrs. Myrtle Blumenthal Hirsch; and a brother, Elkin Blumenthal. Survivors include her son, Jacob Brener, of Pass Christian; a granddaughter, Marah Elizabeth Boles; and a great-granddaughter, Azriel Boles, both of Pensacola, Fla.

Services were held at Touro Synagogue in New Orleans on Monday, Jan. 12. Memorials may be made to Alzheimer's Foundation of the South; 4803 Harrison Cir., Gulfport, MS 395097.

Spicy spices

Stella is spelling me this Sunday with some remarks on cooking. This week's entry is from her column on our website: www.annabellepublishing.com. She does a new recipe each month and I do a new story. Check it out when you get a chance.

Well, it's the beginning of a new year and its time for me to straighten up and replenish my spice cabinet. All that holiday cooking and baking has taken a toll on the contents as well as the arrangement of my spice cabinet.

There is a good reason for my doing this. I believe it's a false economy to try to save spices when they are past their prime. Think of the work that goes into in doing a recipe. You want the results to reflect the quality of what you want the dish to be. Using seasonings that are past their prime will detract markedly from what you are trying to achieve.

So I make January of each year the time to clean out my spices and start a new year with a rack of new spices. I strongly suggest you do the same. So, join me and get out your grocery list and see what kind and how many spices you need and go shopping. It will probably be an expensive venture, but well worth it in the end.

Doing this just after the holidays is a good time. The shelves in the grocery store should be displaying fresh merchandise now due to all that holiday cooking and it is an excellent way to start the New Year. Plus, you will remember to do it again next year at the same time. Please buy from a reputable store. Not from some bargain outlet. There is no telling how long they essences. Whole spices tend to retain their flavor longer than the ground or powdered variety. Ground spices lose their flavors more rapidly and may be adulterated. So using whole spices may be to your advantage.

Dried spices should be of a good color, not faded.

HAPPY NEW YEAR BREAKFAST SAUSAGE

2 pounds ground pork
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon ground thyme
1/2 teaspoon ground sage
2 dashes of garlic salt

Mix the ground pork so that the lean and fat parts of the pork are evenly distributed. Sprinkle the salt, pepper, thyme, sage and garlic salt over the pork and mix thoroughly.

Sauté a small amount of the mixture, taste and correct the seasonings.

Form the sausage into a large roll or into several patties or links. Refrigerate for two to three days so the sausage can cure and the flavors can blend. The sausage keeps in the refrigerator for 3 to 4 days or frozen for up to a month without a loss in flavor.

This makes a wonderful, fresh breakfast sausage and can be used to stuff cabbage or apples.

The key to the successful taste of the sausage is the use of fresh spices as well as allowing time for it to cure and the flavor to blend.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

have been in some back lot warehouse before being dumped on such an outlet.

Since spices are expensive, there are several factors to consider when you are making your purchases. Consider how you are going to use a particular spice. Spices come in a variety of forms, from seeds and powders to fresh roots and aromatic leaves as well as distilled Smell what you purchase. They must have a good odor and not possess a musty smell. Avoid pods or fruits that appear cracked, shriveled or hollow. Avoid bags of seeds that contain a lot of powder or dust.

Keep in mind the amount of a particular spice you normally use. If you use some spices less frequently, buy them in smaller quantities. Beware of the deals that are sometimes offered - you usually get what you pay for and you may end up buying old spices.

Store your spices in a nonabsorbent container such as glass jars, in a cool, dark place in your kitchen; however, make them easily accessible for your cooking purposes. Date your containers as you replenish them - use a grease pencil or a label on the bottom of the container.

Once you have obtained the freshest spices you can find, pay particular attention to the way you cook with them. For instance, place whole spices in a cloth bag or a stainless steel tea ball so that you can remove them more readily when the dish is done. Don't over boil the spices, particularly pepper and caraway seeds - they become bitter if you do. Keep paprika and curry away from high heat as they scorch easily. And, when making light fruit butters or canning pickles, use whole spices instead of powdered. The powdered variety of spice tends to darken the ingredients.

Remember, all of this is for good reason. Ultimately, you want the best possible ingredients for your cooking ventures. Fresh ingredients seasoned with fresh spices that are well treated in the cooking process will provide you with a very satisfying end product. So, make up your spice list, go shopping, and, as Paul would say, keep on cooking.

Welcome to Mardi Gras

"Mickey" gets into the Carnival spirit, leading a jazz band procession through Jackson Square on Fat Tuesday.

Experience the pageantry, lunacy of Carnival in the city

While visions of sugar plums danced through most people's heads, my thoughts are generally preoccupied by visions of king cakes and brightly-colored beads. I enjoy the Christmas season's familial camaraderie and spirit of joy, but I'm always anxious for the carnival season to begin. Now that it's here, I'm ready for some action.

MARDI GRAS! MARDI GRAS! MARDI GRAS!

We're lucky here on the Coast. We have some spectacular Mardi Gras events, kicking off with the Krewe of Selené parade at Diamondhead (and later, appropriately enough, the Krewe of Diamondhead parade), leading into the pomp and circumstance of the Krewe of Nereids carnival ball and parade in Waveland; the manic energy of the St. Paul Carnival Association parade in Pass Christian; and the creative majesty of the Krewe of Real People parade in Bay St. Louis on Fat Tuesday.

Certainly, you don't want to miss out on any of that, but if you're feeling a little adventurous, you owe it to yourself to - at least once in your life - experience that inspired gumbo of the sacred and the profane:

Royalty comes in all shapes and sizes on Mardi Gras day on Bourbon Street.

Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

Nowhere else will you find such an eclectic blend of piety and lunacy, pageantry and licentiousness.

DON'T BE SCARED.

Thanks to the good folks at the Chateau Sonesta (at Bourbon and Canal streets), I was fortunate enough to spend three days at Carnival ground zero last Mardi Gras.

Despite what the sign-toting zealots proclaim all across the city on Fat Tuesday, Mardi Gras is not the breeding ground for evil you may have heard about.

Yes, there are some things going on that aren't for young eyes (or older eyes, either, for that matter), but if you know where to go and use some common sense, you should make it through the experience without too much trauma.

First of all, know up front that Bourbon Street should be completely off limits to kids and those who are easily offended - of course, it's that way all year long.

The rest of the French Quarter should be relatively safe, as long as you stay in the well-populated areas between Canal St. and Ursulines, from Decatur to Royal. Royal St. is where a lot of the locals hang out

Mardi Gras -- ground zero

(with some spill-over from the Bourbon St. madness), and that's where you'll find some of the more entertaining (and inoffensive) costumes. It's also much easier to walk down Royal than Bourbon, which is shoulder-to-shoulder from Saturday night after the Endymion parade on through Fat Tuesday at midnight. That's when the street cleaners and police come through, sweeping the Quarter's narrow alleyways clean of refuse and revelers alike.

If you'd like to experience Mardi Gras but are afraid of the crowds, the week before is filled with parades and Carnival-related events, but with far fewer people — just enough to make it fun. You'll also get to take part in colorful local traditions, such as the ceremonial greasing of the poles (to keep drunkards from climbing up to the balconies).

You can avoid the French Quarter entirely, if you like. None of the major parades go through the Quarter — they stick more float-friendly venues like St. Charles and Canal Street.

The balcony from the Chateau Sonesta overlooks the entire Canal tableau. From there, you can see every parade that comes through, from Babylon to Bacchus, Endymion to Zulu — if you're a Chateau Sonesta customer.

There are plenty of points on the parade routes where you can set up without paying a dime — just be sure to bring food and refreshments. But don't drink and drive — you may laugh about drive-in daiquiri shops in Louisiana, but the police don't kid around on Mardi Gras. If you're going to drink, either have a designated driver or get a room. You've already missed the first N'Awlins parade of the season — the Phunny Phorty Phellows paraded on Tuesday — but there's plenty more to see, including:

Saturday, February 7
Krewe du Vieux - French Quarter, 7 p.m.

Sunday, February 8
Little Rascals - Metairie, noon

Friday, February 13

Oshun - Uptown, 6:30 p.m.
Pygmalion - Uptown, 7:30 p.m.

Yes, you're likely to see some strange things/people during Mardi Gras in New Orleans, but as long as you keep the kids off of Bourbon St., it should keep the emotional trauma to a minimum.

Getting there's half the battle, but where are you gonna sleep?

THE SEA COAST ECHO
If you decide to take the plunge and experience Mardi Gras in New Orleans, one of your major concerns will be where to stay.

While the short drive makes it possible to just go down for the day and come back home for the night, you'll have a lot more fun if you stay overnight.

One of the best places in town is the Chateau Sonesta.

The D.H. Holmes Department Store operated for 140 years (from 1849 until 1989), became a local treasure, and gained a national reputation as one of the outstanding retail establishments in the United States. Upon the store's closing, the property was donated to the City of New Orleans. The city in turn, created the Canal Street Development Corporation, a public benefit corporation formed to administer the project of rescuing the pre-Civil War structure.

The City of New Orleans, Historic Restoration Inc. (the developer) and Sonesta International Hotels

Corporation joined together on a common mission, to preserve and readapt the use of this historic building by turning it into a truly unique hotel.

The 251-room luxury hotel opened in April 1995, a successful example of public/private partnership.

The transformation of the pre-Civil War landmark into a 20th century hotel included a complete interior renovation and exterior restoration to the building's 1913 facade. Many special reminders of the building's past have been incorporated into the hotel:

* Alabaster pillars from the original D.H. Holmes soda fountain adorn the bar in the Clock Bar.

* Marble accents in the floor of the lobby, as well as the iron (faux marble) columns in the lobby, were preserved from the original structure.

* The cypress exposed beams in the Atrium Courtyard date back to 1849, and were part of the original building.

* The famous "clock", which was a favorite meeting place for generations of

New Orleanians and missing since the store closed, was returned to the hotel in November of 1995, during a "D.H. Holmes Memorabilia Party" by two well-meaning "preservationists" who had disconnected the clock from its perch on Canal Street for safekeeping. The clock presently hangs in its original location on Canal Street.

* Underneath the clock is the $23,000, bronze sculpture of Ignatius Reilly, funded jointly by the hotel and the Downtown Development District. The statue mimics the opening scene of the 1981 Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, "A Confederacy of Dunces." The comical character waits for his mother under the D.H. Holmes clock, clutching a Werlein's shopping bag, dressed in a hunting cap, flannel shirt, baggy pants and scarf.

The Chateau Sonesta can be reached at: 800 Iberville Street New Orleans, LA 70112 Tel: (504) 586-0800 Fax: (504) 586-1987 Online: reserv@chateau-sonesta.com.

ISSACHAR, THE NINTH SON!

ISSACHAR MEANS HIRING OR THERE IS HIRE. THE NINTH SON OF JACOB AND THE FIFTH BY LEAH (GEN. 30:17,18). HIS SONS WERE TOLA, PUNJAH, ZASULE, AND SHIMRON. ISSACHAR, PRESUMABLY WOULD AND DID GO TO EGYPT WITH HIS FATHER JACOB (GEN. 46:13) WHERE, SHORTLY BEFORE HIS DEATH, JACOB WITH PROPHETIC INSIGHT INTO HIS NINTH SON'S CHARACTER, DESCRIBED ISSACHAR AND HIS CHILDREN AS A STRONG ASS CROUCHING DOWN BETWEEN THE SHEEP FOLDS, SUBMITTING TO THE BURDENS IMPOSED BY FOREIGN MASTERS PROVIDED THEY PERMIT HIM TO REMAIN IN HIS PLEASANT LAND (GEN. 49:14,15). THE DESCENDANTS FORMED ONE OF THE TWELVE TRIBES OF ISRAEL, CONSISTING OF FOUR CLANS, ONE FOR EACH OF THE SONS OF ISSACHAR. AT THE FIRST CENSUS TAKEN IN THE WILDERNESS, THE TRIBE NUMBERED FIFTY FOUR THOUSAND FIGHTING MEN AND IN DAVID'S REIGN, IT HAD REACHED EIGHTY SEVEN THOUSAND FIRST CLASS WARRIORS! WHEN THE TRIBE OCCUPIED THE VALLEY OF JEZREEL, AS THEIR PORTION OF THE PROMISED LAND THIS LOW, LEVEL, AND FERTILE PLAIN, COMBINED WITH THE TRIBAL TRAITS OF THE PEOPLE, EXPLAINS WHY IN ACCORDANCE WITH JACOB'S PROPHECY, THE TRIBE WAS SO READY TO SUBMIT TO SERVITUDE---THEY HAD MUCH TO LOSE, LIVING ON GROUND THAT WAS SO WELL ADAPTED TO THE ACTION OF THE WAR CHARIOTS OF THEIR ENEMIES!

Unbridled Glee Services of Community of Colleges

Our near two-hour Jan. 4 Sunday services, sporting a lively but less-than-hefty congregation, had not long concluded with a Christmas recessional. After all, this was the Epiphany, our Gentile Christmas.

Hot out of church, a parishioner who tells all was stunned to see a goodly number of morning worshipers now doing afternoon services at one of the local casinos. Of course, those services lasted four hours and beyond.

But that was small change compared to the big services of the day, the Unbridled Glee Services of the Community of Colleges. This year, the BCS (Bowl Championship Series) decreed services would be at the Sugar Bowl.

For weeks leading up to the Unbridled Glee Services, talkathons flooded the sports talk shows around the nation, especially in football-crazy New Orleans and Baton Rouge. All was Sugar Bowl and more Sugar Bowl.

At long last, the big day was here. An irrepressible 68,000 faithful of the Community of Colleges had taken their seats in the venue of the services, the Superdome Cathedral, a full hour before the scheduled start-up time.

Time, obviously, was no object. By kickoff time, the expectant faithful had swelled

Reflections on Life
by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD to a standing-room-only 79,000, far more than the ideal the NFL wants. But this was college solemn services, and the more the merrier.

So great was the swell of anticipation and expectation of the Unbridled Glee Services that a ticket became one of the hottest of any Bowl tickets of any time. They were selling fast at many times more than the base $150.

The atmosphere, hype, intrigue and frenzy of the Unbridled Glee Services had become so incredibly intense that they dwarfed all previous national championship services at the Superdome Cathedral.

Pre-services warm-up was exciting in its own right with bands, cheer leaders and dancers uplifting the hearts and minds of the 68,000 faithful who had arrived an hour early, plus the additional 11,000 still pouring in. There was no concern about time elapsed, but only about the services themselves.

Partisans from Oklahoma (the Sooners) and Baton Rouge (the Tigers) had streamed onto the large grass-carpeted stage lined at 10-yard intervals, and, pawing the carpet, faced each other with fired-up emotions and adrenalin.

They were mentally and emotionally ready to make the services interesting.

Despite their seeming deadly hostility toward one another, the Partisans actually harbored a friendly attitude of stiff competition deep under their scary game face. They intended to slam without maiming each other.

They were totally prepared to carry out a 3-hour morality skit, vying with might and main to outdo one another in a bruising battle of righteousness: to do battle without fouls, especially without unsportsmanlike conduct.

Their enthusiastic partisan fans, decked out in their personal colors of OU red and white or LSU purple and gold, established their loud Amen corners all around the Superdome Cathedral. Did they give a witness? Yes indeed!

With rapt attention, they were more focused than they had been at any regular Sunday services. This, the Unbridled Glee Services, were so unique, so different from all the other Sunday services. Without a doubt, this was the Superdome Cathedral of what's happening now.

Then a hush fell over the cathedral. This was a solemn moment of tense, nerve-racking silence and wonder. Although nothing was verbalized, it was a time of heartfelt prayer, thanksgiving and petition. Praise God!

Ardent, attentive ushers in zebra stripes took up their positions among the Partisans. They had whistles to be heard above the roaring congregation, and they had large handkerchiefs to be thrown in case of foul play.

At this point, the electricity coursing through the partisan faithful was almost too overwhelming to bear. A week-long buildup had crescendoed at fever pitch, rendering the congregation momentarily speechless.

When the services got underway with the coin flip and the ensuing kickoff, the faithful stood in thunderous unison, voicing their approval, their passion and their fervent expectations of nothing short of smashing victory.

Much to their delight and delirium, the partisan faithful were finally confronted with the moment of truth. To win or not to win; in any case, to fight the battle in such a way that faith, trust and pride are held sky high.

First on one side, then on the other, fortunes waxed and fortunes waned, as first the LSU purple and gold, then the OU red and white asserted themselves, doggedly determined to cross salvation's plane of the goal line.

All the while, the faithful gave thunderous, whistling, screaming witness to the ups and downs of their stout heroes. Only at the bitter end did the OU faithful retreat in unpleasant defeat as the clock ran out.

Left standing and giving loud witness virtually alone, the LSU faithful, their voices hoarse and almost gone from spirited shouting, concluded the Unbridled Glee Services with ear-splitting thanks and jubilation. Amen!

The "Word" for the Week
Godly perspective on life

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

For the most part, our society is driven in three directions.

First, we are engaged in building cities for ourselves. This does not seem strange. But we want to be able to pat ourselves on the back when we get finished. This leads into the second point.

If we are religious at all, we generally feel that if we do a good job in this life, we will be all right in the life to come. If there is a God, He will surely smile on us! This brings us to point three.

Everything in our culture is geared toward men and women making a good name for themselves. We are told that if we get a good education, we will be able to get a better job. With a better job, we can make more money. Then we can buy more things. And we'll make a name for ourselves.

It's all very interesting because this is exactly what the people who built the tower of Babel wanted. Listen: "And they said, 'Come, let us build for ourselves a city, and a tower whose top will reach into heaven, and let us make for ourselves a name; lest we be scattered abroad over the face of the whole earth'" (Genesis 11:4).

Now the really interesting thing is that the teachings of Jesus Christ lead us in exactly the opposite direction. Christianity leads men and women to build the City of God. That is, Christianity leads men and women to build a society which is glorifying to God!

Not only so, Christ is the only way into heaven. People who trust in His good works rather than in their own shabby, imperfect works are the ones who are taken safely into heaven.

All of this means that Christians seek the glory! It is a completely different perspective on life. It is a Godly perspective.

Reinhart named SSC delegate to O'Brien Youth Leadership Conference

St. Stanislaus College sophomore Brad Reinhart has been selected by the SSC faculty as the school's representative at the 2003-2004 Hugh O'Brien Youth Leadership Conference (HOBY) Leadership Conference, according to Brother Ronald Hingle, SSC, Principal.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Reinhart of Diamondhead, has attended St. Stanislaus since the seventh grade.

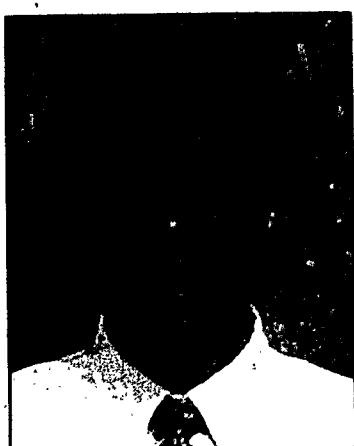

During this time he has participated in the National Junior Honor Society, National Honor Society, Student Council, Math and Science Team, the Key Club, the Rockchaw, the Quiz Bowl, Mississippi Youth Legislature, track, and cross country.

Reinhart has also received the school's Character Award of the Day as well as the monthly Character Award. He has maintained a place on the President's Honor Roll (4.0 GPA) throughout his career at St. Stanislaus.

SSC President Brother Ronald Talbot states, "Brad is an outstanding choice as a HOBY representative from St. Stanislaus. He has demonstrated a positive and cheerful disposition, a strong set of values, a willingness to stand up for what is right, a keen sense of responsibility, and a deeply held respect for others."

According to SSC Cross County coach and English teacher Steve Flannery, "He is not only very smart, but he's also incredibly hard working, trustworthy, kind and compassionate towards peers, and always respectful to adults. Despite all his strengths and accomplishments, Brad remains humble, down-to-earth, and eager to help those around him in any way he can. In short, he is the epitome of what we call a St. Stanislaus Man of Character."

BRAD REINHART

Reinhart will attend the Mississippi HOBY Conference June 4 through June 6, 2004, on the campus of Millsaps College in Jackson.

The Hugh O'Brien Foundation was established for the purpose of acknowledging high school sophomores with recognized leadership potential and assisting them in developing this potential. One method by which HOBY does this is by offering a leadership seminar for one tenth grade candidate from every school nationwide.

St. Stanislaus College is a Catholic residency and day school for young men in grades 6-12. The school fosters character formation and integrates faith development within a curriculum which is primarily college preparatory.

Students get up close with Mississippi's Marine Resources

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Each year Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR) staff members from Marine Fisheries, Coastal Ecology and Marine Patrol divisions are invited to classrooms across the Coast to talk to students about the value of our coastal resources. Through outreach and education, the DMR hopes to instill in these students a love for our marine environment and an awareness of our rich coastal heritage.

"I think it's important to introduce children to our native marine species early on, so that they'll gain an understanding of how our economy and the livelihood of our residents depend on our marine resources," said DMR marine fisheries biologist Jude LeDoux.

Recently, LeDoux and fellow DMR marine fisheries biologist Mike Rigdon visited Mrs. Wright's fourth-grade class at Martin Bluff Elementary in Gautier, taking with them specimens of flounder, octopus, Red Drum, sharks, jellyfish, shrimp and oysters. The class was able to see these residents of the Gulf firsthand and to learn facts such as how a flounder's eyes work and how an oyster eats.

"I really liked it when you showed that flounder," Kain Shumach, a fourth-grade student at Martin Bluff Elementary, wrote in a thank you letter to LeDoux and Rigdon. "It is fascinating how a flounder's eyes [are] on one side."

Garrett Wilson, also a fourth-grade student at Martin Bluff Elementary, wrote in a thank you letter: "I liked when you showed us the flounder, ramora the shark suckers and the red fish. I didn't know that a red fish had a big dot on its tail."

DMR staff members participated in more than 40 educational events during 2003, reaching out to about 30,000 people, including thousands of students, and distributing information on such topics as boat and water safety, the importance of wetlands, the effects of marine debris, fish common to Mississippi's marine waters and DMR programs.

"In addition to performing their daily duties—enhancing, protecting and conserving our marine resources—DMR staffers also take the time to educate students about the importance of those resources," said DMR Executive Director William Walker. "If students learn to appreciate our marine resources at a young age, we believe they will grow to be wise stewards of their coastal environment."

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources is dedicated to enhancing, protecting and conserving marine interests of the State by managing all marine life, public trust wetlands, adjacent uplands and waterfront areas to provide for the optimal commercial, recreational, educational and economic uses of these resources consistent with environmental concerns and social changes. Visit the DMR online at www.dmr.state.ms.us <<http://www.dmr.state.ms.us>>

'The Piano Lesson' playing at Bay St. Louis Little Theatre

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will present "The Piano Lesson" on Jan. 9-11 and 16-18.

In an effort to attract a more diverse audience and cast and crew participation, this Pulitzer Prize-winning drama by August Wilson will be the first to include an all-African American cast and director at the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre.

Boy Willie dreams of buying the same Mississippi land that his family had worked as slaves, and plans to sell the family's antique piano to raise the cash he needs. His sister Berniece refuses to sell, clinging to the piano as a part of the family legacy. The family dilemma is the real "piano lesson," a reminder that blacks are often deprived both of the symbols of their past and of opportunity in the present.

August Wilson is known for his spellbinding dramas including his first Pulitzer Prize-winning play "Fences" and "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom."

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will bring this resonant drama to the John F. Holmes Playhouse at 301 Boardman Ave. on Jan. 9, 10, 16, and 17 at 8 p.m. with special matinee performances on Jan. 11 and 18 at 2 p.m.

Some of the cast members of The Piano Lesson include (from left) Metric Dockins as Doaker, Imani Joseph as Maretha, Judy Verrett as Berniece, Stefan King as Boy Willie and Harold Wilkerson as Wining Boy.

Charles Joseph will direct with Rebecca Hardin as assistant director and Scott Darrah as producer.

The cast includes Metric

Dockins as Doaker, Stefan King as Boy Willie, John Ragins as Lymon, Judy Verrett as Berniece, Imani Joseph as Maretha, Allen

Jenkins as Avery, Harold Wilkerson as Wining Boy and Shelly Hazeur as Grace

Admission is $12 for adults, $10 for seniors and $7 for students 17 and below. The theater has a general seating policy. Tickets will be available at the door on the night of the show, and doors open at 7:30 p.m.

Los Angeles Sheriff's Senior Deputy Ryan Layne (Jamie Luner) and her trainee, Chase Williams (Travis Schuldt), pull over a female motorist in a scene for the ABC police drama "10-8," which returns with original episodes Sunday, Jan. 11.

After the woman successfully befuddles the trainee with her considerable cleavage, Layne steps in and shows him it was all an act to conceal drugs in the car. She tosses the woman against the car, handcuffs the criminal and leads her off.

For Luner, it's a long way from the vixens she played in "Savannah" and "Melrose Place."

"I love doing the action," she says. "I like to play. It's fun. Handcuffing a person, that's a very difficult thing to do. It seems easy, but it's not as easy as it looks."

"Pulling your gun, I know how to do that - putting your gun in your holster - but to turn someone and make sure you're doing these little subtleties and little nuances with your body language, the way you're holding people and holding your body, not shifting your weight, being grounded. All those nuances are really solidifying in me now."

Luner joined the cast in the Nov. 9 episode, "Late for School," which featured her only romantic scene thus far, with trainee Rico Amonte (Danny Nucci).

"I had tequila and made out with Danny," Luner says. "That was a good time."

As Rachel Burke in "Profiler," Luner caught the bad guys and carried a gun, but this is the first time she's worn the uniform.

"When I put this outfit on," she says, "I feel really comfortable in it. I see some of the extras walking by, and I'm like, 'You look really official.' Then I look at me and say, 'That's me! I look like that, too.'"

Luner finds unexpected benefits in playing a no-nonsense sheriff. "It's the first time it's not about my hair, my makeup or my wardrobe. I got a few compliments from my friends and family about my acting, actually. I feel more serious. It's exciting."

Birthplace: Palo Alto, CA.
Previous career: Luner attended culinary school and worked as a chef in a French restaurant.

How Luner sees Layne: "She grew up on a ranch; she's a pistol-packin' mama."

Hobbies: Singing; dancing; cooking; camping.

Fan mail: Jamie Luner, "10-8," C/O Audience Information, ABC Television, 500 S. Buena Vista St., Burbank, CA 91521.

Featured Dweezil and Lisa serve up hot music in a tepid TV show

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

A good cook can pluck a few items out of a refrigerator and whip up a meal. The rest of us see eggs, a heel of bread and mustard, then order pizza.

Just as it is interesting to watch chefs create much out of little, it is also interesting to watch musicians perform. Theoretically, combining the two should lead to something fascinating.

But theories do not always prove correct. The Food Network's "Dweezil & Lisa," premiering Friday, Jan. 16, is a stew of what it isn't. It is not a true food show, as no recipes are given. Nor is it a music show, as only snippets of songs are shown. It is, unfortunately, most like a reality show where viewers watch Dweezil Zappa and Lisa Loeb.

As far as young musical couples go, watching them is not mind numbing in the way suffering through Jessica Simpson and Nick Lachey is. However, as nice as the intelligent Loeb and the offspring of Frank Zappa are, there is little focus to the show. In the pilot, they visit Atlanta and stop at Watershed Restaurant, owned by Indigo Girls member Emily Saliers, who tries to teach them about wine. Dweezil wins over anyone who has ever felt self-conscious about swirling, then sniffing wine. "I don't know if I would ever feel comfortable doing it," he says crooking his pinky as he sips to show how precious this feels.

A couple of the restaurants they visit look inviting. However, it would be far more inviting if viewers learned how to make some of the luscious looking treats rather than just see them.

Classy Joshua Bell takes a bow and his Stradivarius to PBS

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Joshua Bell, the virtuoso violinist, has just roused himself. His brown hair is disheveled, and he drinks the coffee his assistant hands him with the grateful concentration one affords the day's first caffeine.

It is his 36th birthday, and Bell is to leave Manhattan in a few hours to perform Brahms in Amsterdam. Another violinist canceled at the last minute, and Bell has agreed to stand in - but not before conferring with managers on different continents.

There is a simple reason he is in demand: Bell is a brilliant violinist. His music washes over listeners, transporting them to a far more beautiful place.

Those who do not own any of his 27 compact discs can experience what classical music fans have been agog over by tuning in to "Live from Lincoln Center Presents: Joshua Bell and Orpheus at the Penthouse" on PBS Wednesday, Jan. 14 (check local listings). To put Bell's talent in context, he is only the second violinist after Itzhak Perlman to be featured in the show's 27 years.

"It is one of the neatest things I will do this year," Bell says. "It's a salon type of feeling, with an orchestra. Hopefully, it will be a very relaxed evening."

Host Beverly Sills, one of the 20th century's reigning coloratura sopranos, is also excited. "We are lucky to have him," says Sills, chairwoman of the Metropolitan Opera. "It is such an extraordinary talent."

Sills and Bell were to meet in a few days, so they would be more comfortable at the performance. "I am very anxious to meet him," she says, adding that her granddaughters have taken notice of him. "He is adorable, even I can see that," she says with a chuckle.

With blue eyes and a radiant smile, Bell is fetching enough to have groupies, which is not exactly common in the classical music world. There are also many fan Web sites devoted to him.

Though a technophile who spends considerable time on the computer, Bell says of the fan sites, "I haven't checked in a long time. I haven't done the ego surfing."

He nibbles on a chocolate cookie for breakfast and settles into a leather chair in his loft, where he lives alone. It's a sunny, cold day and the Empire State Building fills the view of the large windows.

As impressive as the view is, a unique table also catches the eye. A round polished wooden piece, it has music stands built into it, and chairs resembling tree trunks surround it. A baby grand piano is a few feet away.

Music lines the walls in the form of CDs and books. Sketches and photos of violinists through the ages are on one wall. A bowling pin - his high score was 229 in a charity tournament - is displayed in an alcove. And a 90-inch television with computers connected to it commands another wall.

Though he recently finished redoing this Gramercy Park loft, he is moving next door. The new digs are better suited for musical salons and will give him access to a rooftop. It's not surprising that Bell would want more space. Though he has been in Manhattan for 13 years, he grew up on 20 acres in Bloomington, Ind. His father, a psychotherapist, saw clients in a converted milk house on the farm, which had chickens, horses and dogs.

"I had been traveling for so many years and knew so many people, that it wasn't a shock coming to New York City," he says.

Bell was the classic prodigy, and cannot remember not playing. He was about 4 when he heard his mother play the piano, then stretched rubber bands on the knobs of his dresser drawers to pluck out tunes. His parents gave him a child-sized violin.

"I never thought of quitting at any point in my life," he says. "I was not a big practitioner. My parents weren't that strict with me ... It's hard to know how it would be if they had been more strict. I have a hard time doing things I don't want to do."

Bell crams before performances. "So far, I haven't fallen on my face," he says. "I am putting in fingerings on the way to the concert hall."

A The boyish-looking Gorham, who actually turns 30 in August, first clicked with fans as sensitive teen Harrison John in The WB Network comedy-drama "Popular," which co-starred actress Anel Lopez as Poppy Fresh. The couple married in 2000, while "Popular" was still on the air, and they now have a 2-year-old son.

After "Popular" ended in 2001, Gorham joined "Felicity" as Trevor O'Donnell for the final season of that show, then moved to the short-lived Showtime sci-fi series "Odyssey 5."

Often typecast as a nice boy next door, Gorham broke that mold memorably last January in a "Boomtown" guest appearance in which he and former "Doogie Howser, M.D." star Neil Patrick Harris played two

Sorry that Gorham is taken, Catherine, but at least UPN is pleased enough with "Jake 2.0" that the network has picked up the series for a full season, despite very weak ratings.

Lemche won a Gemini Award as best supporting actor for his role in the Canadian series "Emily of New Moon." He also had a featured role in the comedy series "Flash Forward" and the 2002 WB flop "My Guide to Becoming a Rock Star."

He co-starred with Linda Hamilton in the 2001 TV movie fantasy "Bailey's Mistake," and had a recurring role on "La Femme Nikita." Feature credits include "Teen Knight," "eXistenZ" and "Ginger Snaps."

Heche examines other side of abuse in 'Gracie's Choice'

By John Crook
© Zap2it

If an actress always brings part of herself to any part, Anne Heche must have needed some kind of a psychic U-Haul for her role in "Gracie's Choice," a fact-based Lifetime movie premiering Monday, Jan. 12.

The actress stars as Rowena Larson, a feckless and irresponsible young single mother who is so neglectful of her large brood that her eldest daughter, Gracie (Kristen Bell), eventually sues for custody of her younger siblings.

"(This story) resonated like mad," says Heche, a survivor of childhood abuse herself. "This was such an important project for me to do, and I feel blessed that it came my way. I may be one of the only people who could know for sure that my character, Rowena, is true, (not a dramatic exaggeration)."

"I felt that was important at a time when we need so badly to allow children to tell their own stories so we can help solve this problem of abuse. Until people acknowledge that problem, it can't be solved."

In her 2001 bestselling memoir "Call Me Crazy," Heche candidly and hair-raisingly chronicles the childhood sexual abuse she endured at the hands of her father, a closeted bisexual who died of AIDS in 1983. By that time he had transmitted herpes to his daughter, Anne, who was 13 at the time of his death.

"Some people said it was very hard to read my book," Heche acknowledges. "They said, 'Why is she telling us this stuff? Who wants to know that?' I feel it is our responsibility as a compassionate people to look at the problems in this world, which often stem from children that are coming out of this endless cycle of abuse.

"I know this is very difficult subject matter, I know that. If you don't know about it, it's hard perhaps to explain why you should. Abusive parents look just like you or me, and it bothers us to think that people we have so many superficial things in common with are capable of deeply hurting a child. We want to think that someone like that would look like a monster, and it takes a shift in our consciousness to accept this as a reality. But it's vital that we do make that effort. There is just too much at stake to lose."

"Gracie's Choice" was a welcome assignment for Heche for another reason as well, she explains.

"I said to my husband when I finished playing Rowena that a big mystery was now gone for me," Heche says. "I always wanted to know the other side, so as I stepped into this woman, I wanted very badly to know if she really was loving. What I experienced myself as caring gestures or comments within the abusive environment, did they come out of real love? Did she care?"

"And I found the answer: No. People like Rowena are too far gone. They failed to make a different choice (in their own lives). Of course, that's not always easy. I'm sure some of these people have never been told they can make a different choice, so they don't even recognize that as an option in their lives."

Heche says she hopes children will watch the Lifetime movie and understand that they have the power to change their lives. That turned out to be a very long and painful process for the actress herself, culminating in a very public breakdown near Fresno, Calif., in 2000, also recounted in her book.

She hopes, too, that "Gracie's Choice" makes people willing to intercede if they become aware of abuse outside their own family.

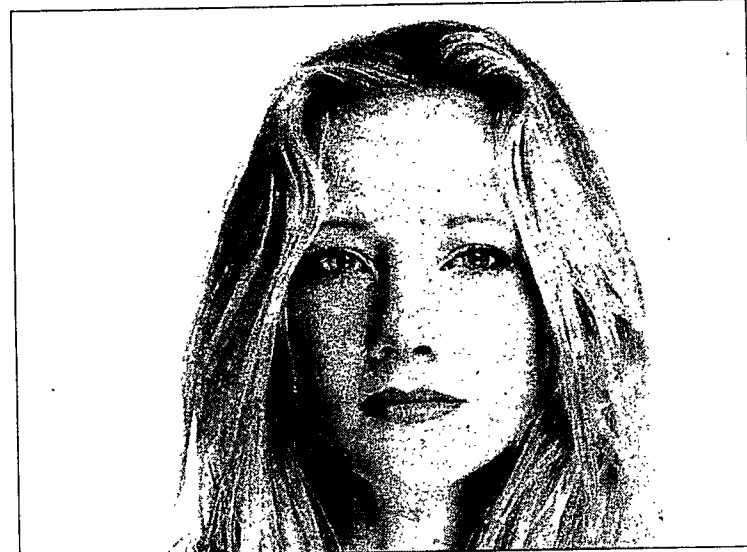

"When you look at it from the outside, the journey I've made is a rocky one, but now I have my health and my love and my family," she says. "My story is by no means the worst I have heard. Not all children are abused sexually, but the scars are no less real. In this movie, Rowena doesn't smack her kids around, she just disappears for two days at a time and leaves them to fend for themselves."

"If you see something like that happening, it's vital to get involved. Go online, find out more from a place like From Darkness to Light, this organization I work with, about how you can step in and help to end the abuse."

Heche, who married cameraman Coley Lafoon in 2001 and welcomed her first child in 2002, says she feels more relaxed and confident than ever these days, and that only improves her work.

"I feel that I am very lucky that I've had any kind of career at all," she says, laughing. "When I became whole and healthy at last, I looked back and went, 'Wow, how did I do all that? It's amazing.' But the thing about going through an abusive childhood is that it leaves you able to deal with just about anything, because nothing is as bad as what you were raised in. If you survive it, you have a lot of stuff to give."

The actress says she found new rewards in her 2002 Broadway debut, when she took over the lead in the hit play "Proof," winning rave reviews in the role that had won a Tony for Mary-Louise Parker.

"It was truly just divine," Heche says of her maiden Broadway voyage. "It was so wonderful. I felt like I was home, and people even teased me about it during the rehearsal process. I couldn't believe they were giving me that opportunity, but the minute I stepped out on stage, I felt that exchange with the audience, and I thought, wow, this is so beautiful and perfect, but I never could have done this at any other time of my life."

In addition to promoting "Gracie's Choice," Heche spent most of her recent holidays chomping at the bit to begin rehearsals for her next Broadway assignment, starring opposite Alec Baldwin in a revival of the sparkling screwball comedy "Twentieth Century," essaying the fiery movie queen role played by Carole Lombard in a 1934 film version.

"So many people helped bring me to this place in my life: everyone who wanted to work with me, who gave me a chance, who encouraged me, they all helped me heal myself, and I am so grateful to all of them," Heche says.

Another 'Bachelorette' gets her pick of men on ABC

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Meredith Phillips, who placed fourth in the latest "Bachelor" series, is the woman with the power.

She is following in Trista Rehn's steps in the second season of the unscripted ABC series "The Bachelorette," starting Wednesday, Jan. 14.

Chris Harrison returns as the series' host, and leads Phillips through her introductions to 25 men, who eventually are sent home until just two contenders for her heart remain.

Raised in Portland, Ore., and currently living in Los Angeles, model and makeup artist Phillips made "Bachelor" history by going ahead with a date with Bob Guiney just after learning of her beloved grandmother's death. She later took him to the grave site when he visited Phillips and her family.

"I was really surprised," Phillips says of landing "Bachelorette" duty. "It was something I hadn't really even thought about, but I didn't have any second thoughts. I based my decision on what I want in my life right now and where I see my life going. It has been tough for me to find someone really good. I'm picky, so when the opportunity arose to have 25 great guys hand-picked for me, I would have been a little stupid not to go for it."

Phillips knew she'd be the next "Bachelorette" long before ABC's official announcement, but she had to keep mum about it when she appeared on the special "The Bachelor: The Women Tell All."

"It was tough," she admits. "My family knew, of course ... but from being on 'The Bachelor,' you get back in the swing of keeping quiet about it. I had such a good experience on 'The Bachelor,' despite how it turned out for me. My family was very supportive of my doing this. They want to see me happy, so they were excited."

Millions of viewers saw Phillips at her most vulnerable upon her grandmother's passing. "If anything," she reasons, "going through that has helped me think more about who I am. Everyone has their own opinion on how they would have dealt with the situation, and I felt I did what was best for me and my family. My mom and dad weren't going to tell me, and my brother was the one who said, 'She needs to know' - and I'm so glad."

Phillips now has more appreciation of Guiney's experience, since he was sent packing by Rehn in "The Bachelorette," only to have to do the same to others during his "Bachelor" tenure. "Oh, my gosh, it's horrible," Phillips says. "That's the hardest part of this for me. It's not exactly a breakup, but I haven't had to do it too many times in my life. It's just the worst feeling and I try to deal with it as best I can. It's getting harder and harder as this process goes along."

The "Bachelor" track record isn't particularly great. Alex Michel, Aaron Buerge and Andrew Firestone all broke up with the women they selected, although at press time, Guiney was still together with Estella Gardinier. First "Bachelorette" Rehn married the man she chose, Colorado fireman Ryan Sutter, in a recent ABC miniseries.

If that puts heat on Phillips to consider "Meredith and (Whoever's) Wedding," she isn't showing it. "It gives me hope," she claims. "I know Trista and Ryan are very much in love, but as to whether I would want my wedding on TV, I don't know. That decision will have to be made along with the guy I choose."

Meredith Phillips, who placed fourth on the most recent edition of "The Bachelor," returns to unscripted-series territory as she becomes "The Bachelorette" when that show's second season begins Wednesday on ABC. Phillips will have a field of 25 men from which to choose.

Jacobson decides she likes anchoring after all

By George Dickle
© Zap2it

For Dana Jacobson, the toughest thing about being an ESPN anchor is constantly having to be on your toes.

"It's mentally exhausting," says Jacobson, an anchor on the week-day evening edition of "SportsCenter." "When I started here, I was just doing ESPN News, and that is far harder than, I think, any 'SportsCenter' ever can be, because it's constant - just new shot sheets of different games constantly being thrown at you; the resources are different. It's just two solid hours where you need to be so focused.

"Whereas I think 'SportsCenter,' it seems like you just have more preparation. And I haven't done the later 'SportsCenter' shows, which are more highlight driven, and it's probably more similar to news because the idea of news is to give it to you instantly - as soon as it happens, we put it out there. So a game has just ended, and here you go, here's your whole shot sheet. You've never seen the highlight; you clearly weren't watching the game because it was going on while you were on the air.

"But it's an adrenaline rush, too. But again, the first few times - the first couple of weeks - I remember you'd finish your shift and you're exhausted."

A Detroit native, Jacobson saw herself as a network news correspondent upon graduating from the University of Michigan with a degree in English and communications. Her first full-time job came at WJBK in Detroit on the assignment desk. A year later, she moved from that job at a top-10 market to a reporter's job at WPNB/WTOM in the remote burg of Traverse City, Mich. The WPNB news director tried to discourage the move, but Jacobson wanted reporting experience.

Jacobson says, "He was like, 'You don't want to give up your good money that you're making on the assignment desk' - which wasn't really good money, but it was better than what you were going to make in market No. 120 as a reporter. But he and I always joked because he was like, 'Yeah, I was trying to talk you out of it, because I figured if you really wanted to do it, that you would convince me, 'No, no, I want to be a reporter. I want to do this.' And that was what I did, so I went up there."

It was there that Jacobson got her first taste of doing sports. "We had a sports guy who left one weekend and basically gave, like, a day's notice," she says. "And I had been bugging the news director to anchor. And he said, 'OK, you wanted to anchor? You're going to do sports this week.' It's just so different from news. You get to have some personality. For the most part, it's positive stories you're talking about ... And I loved it."

From there, Jacobson moved on to KXTV in Sacramento, Calif., where she covered the Kings and the Bay Area teams. "It was (going from) market No. 119 or 121 up to market No. 19, which was just this amazing jump of actually being able to cover professional teams on a regular basis versus every once in a while going down to Detroit."

Four years later, Jacobson got a new agent with the idea that it was time to make a move to the network level. "I had said for a long time that maybe I could go be a network correspondent in some way, or maybe I could work for an ESPN or an NBC or something like that," she says. "I went that spring and interviewed with a couple of different agents, picked one, and he sent stuff here, and he was like, 'Yeah, I think we can do this.'"

She sent a tape and resume to ESPN, and got a call. "They brought me in for an anchor audition," she says, "and it's one of those things where you have to step back and say, 'OK, what do I want to do?' And I liked anchoring, but not as much as reporting. And then it's like, 'but this is ESPN.'"

"It's one of those funny things," she continues, "because I can look back and think, 'Yeah, I just can't imagine being an anchor and not going out and doing stories.' And now I laugh, because it was just a no-brainer when I got offered the job, and it's a no-brainer now. I love everything I do, and I still miss reporting, but you laugh. You're like, 'I can't believe that there was any point where I was sitting there saying, 'Yeah, I don't know if I'd want to do that.'"

"Scott Hamilton & Friends" Sunday, Jan. 11 (NBC, 4 p.m. ET): The figure skating legend regathers some of his closest professional compatriots in Loveland, Colo., for the 2004 debut of "Scott Hamilton & Friends." The production features rotating performances from Hamilton and other stars, including two-time Olympic champion Ekaterina Gordeeva, world champion Yuka Sato, eight-time British national champion Steven Cousins, and the pairs team of U.S. national champions Jenni Meno and Todd Sand.

"College Basketball" Monday, Jan. 12 (ESPN, 9 p.m. ET): Defending national champion Syracuse takes a break from Big East play for a tough road tilt against Big 12 powerhouse Missouri. The fearsome Orangeman threesome of Hakim Warrick, Gerry McNamara and Billy Edelin will need to be at their best to leave Columbia with a win. It will be interesting to watch how Rickey Paulding and the Tigers combat Syracuse's famous zone defense. Paulding's all-around skills will certainly help in that area.

"College Basketball" Wednesday, Jan. 14 (ESPN, 9 p.m. ET): With Roy Williams now guiding them, North Carolina's disastrous 8-20 season two years ago seems a distant memory. The Tar Heels exploded out of the gate, and their deep starting lineup featuring Rashad McCants, Jawad Williams and Sean May has them poised to compete for the top spot in the ACC. Maryland, meanwhile, is a work in progress, but knowing coach Gary Williams, he'll have his alma mater operating smoothly come March.

Crystal is on the hunt for a new experience

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

Who cares about a driver's license when you can fly?

Crystal Hunt, who plays Lizzie Spaulding in "Guiding Light," recently turned 16, and did something a little different.

"I started taking lessons so I can fly a helicopter," Hunt says. "My uncle gave me the hours. He and my dad and grandpa all flew, and it's something I've always wanted to do."

She has about 12 more hours of classes, and then she'll be flying high on her own. "You know, it's just so cool to be up there and I just love it."

In other news: Emily Harrison ("American Dreams," "7th Heaven") has taken over the role of Bridget Forrester in "The Bold and the Beautiful."

Harrison jumps into the middle of a story line. Bridget is engaged to Oscar (Brian Gaskill), but Deacon (Sean Kanan) still is in the picture. Her first airdate is Jan. 26.

Dear Candace: Can you please settle an argument between my mother and me? I say there was someone else who played Cristian on "One Life to Live." She says that David (Fumero) always played the role. Can you tell us who is right? -Mary Beth in Texas.

Dear Reader: Yorlin Madera originated the role in 1995. Fumero played Cristian from 1998-2003.

Dear Candace: I always wondered what happened to the actress who played Ashley Abbott ("The Young and the Restless") back in the late '80s. She was also a singer and very beautiful. -Laura Miller via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Brenda Epperson played the role of Ashley from 1988 to 1995. She travels the country promoting her new Christian music compact disc.

Dear Candace: My mom is a big fan of "Murder, She Wrote," and swears that Ben Masters, who is on "Passions" (as Julian Crane), had been on the show. I promised to find out if it was the same guy on both shows. -Mike Nowlin via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Masters was on several episodes of "Murder, She Wrote." He played Ray Dandridge (1990), Chief Gillis (1993), and Evan Rafferty and Stanley Barton (1994).

The controversial basketball game between the United States and the Soviet Union in the 1972 Summer Olympics is recalled in this documentary. After the terrorist assault on Israeli athletes, the seemingly unstoppable U.S. hoops team tried to keep its record going in the gold-medal contest, but the Russian squad kept the pressure on. The losing sportsmen refused to accept their silver medals, and that has remained the case.

Three of the couples are married, three others are engaged, and the remaining three are dating — but all bets are off as host Joe Rogan puts them through their paces. Among the challenges are being pulled through sand by dune buggies, and lying in a coffin while covered with tarantulas.

Tuesday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 28-ABC on 13-ABC

8 Simple Rules

Although he might seem an unusual fit for this series, David Spade ("Just Shoot Me") guest stars in the new episode "Get Real." He plays Cate's (Katey Sagal) visiting nephew, whose advice to Rory and Kerry (Martin Spanjers, Amy Davidson) about their respective dilemmas causes plenty of household problems. James Garner continues his guest role as Cate's father.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Nova

Incorporating declassified film footage, "Submarines, Secrets and Spies" lifts the veil on long-suppressed stories of how U.S. submarines undertook risky, sometimes lethal missions to secure vital information during the Cold War. Celebrated oceanographer Robert Ballard assists in searching for clues to the wrecks of the nuclear submarines Thresher and Scorpion.

7 p.m. on HBO

Ellen DeGeneres: Here and Now

She was heard in the Disney movie "Finding Nemo" and currently is a syndicated talk show, but in this special, DeGeneres simply engages in her singular brand of stand-up funny business. Taped in May 2003 at the Beacon Theater in New York, the performance finds DeGeneres ruminating on various aspects of modern life — all of them filtered through her common-sense perspective.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

24

Jack's (Kiefer Sutherland) safety is at risk as Chase (James Badge Dale) is tortured by his captors, who want to know what CTU intends to do about the virus, in the new episode "Day 3: 10:00 — 11:00 PM." The bad feelings incurred by Wayne's (DB Woodside) romantic activities threatens President Palmer's (Dennis Haysbert) authority, leading the chief executive to seek unexpected help.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The Guardian

Lulu (Wendy Moniz) leaves Nick (Simon Baker) after his confession of infidelity, prompting him to take a hallucinogenic trip in the new episode "Beautiful Blue Mystic." As others scramble to cover Nick's cases, the drug gives him visions of seeking help at a rehab clinic.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

American Experience

Racial aspects come into play as the post-war rebuilding of the U.S. South moves forward in "Retreat," the concluding half of the new episode "Reconstruction: The Second Civil War." The vision of white Southerners gets the lion's share of attention and approval, but its impact on the black population turns into the seed of the civil-rights movement to come. Dion Graham narrates.

8 p.m. on 54-UPN

America's Next Top Model

Another group of would-be fashion icons takes up residence together in a New York loft — each woman not-so-secretly hoping to triumph over the others — as the second season of this unscripted series begins. Tyra Banks returns as an executive producer and a judge; former model Janice Dickinson, magazine editor Eric Nicholson and photographer Nigel Barker are among the others who decide who stays in the contest.

8 p.m. and DSC

Covert Action

A new three-part special about various CIA cases begins with "Operation Iron Grip," tracing the agency's hunt for a suspected terrorist who may have links to al-Qaida. CIA operatives hope that finding and interrogating him will lead them to even more prominent figures within the international terrorism network.

8:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

Brutal hate-crime attacks on two young Arab-American women are investigated by Stabler and Benson (Christopher Meloni, Mariska Hargitay) in the new episode "Hate." Upon discovering the victims were active in trying to bridge differences among several ethnic groups, the police detectives are led to a war veteran whose lawyer (guest star Barry Bostwick) offers an unusual defense.

Wednesday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

Determined to avoid the electroshock therapy intended for him, Lex (Michael Rosenbaum) plots his escape from the hospital by teaming with villains who know the impact kryptonite can have in the new episode "Asylum." Clark (Tom Welling) becomes a pawn in the scheme, which gets out of Lex's control. Lana (Kristin Kreuk) feels drawn to a stranger (guest star Ian Somerhalder, "The Rules of Attraction").

7 p.m. on AMC

Movie: For Your Eyes Only

Unwittingly providing scads of material for irreverent heir Austin Powers, James Bond (Roger Moore) charms his way around Greece in this 1981 film. He secures the future of the free world by yachting in the Aegean and nurturing meaningful relationships with women, including the daughter (Carole Bouquet) of a murdered scientist. Together, they seek to recapture a high-tech encryption device from an insidious criminal mastermind.

7:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The Simple Life

Paris Hilton and Nicole Richie end their stay in Altus, Ark., in the season finale of this unscripted series. Nicole isn't about to go quietly: She makes a scene at a nightclub after losing her purse, and Janet Leding insists Nicole return to the site and apologize to those at whom she blew up. Before leaving Altus, Nicole and Paris develop a taste for something they may not find easily back at home — roadkill.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

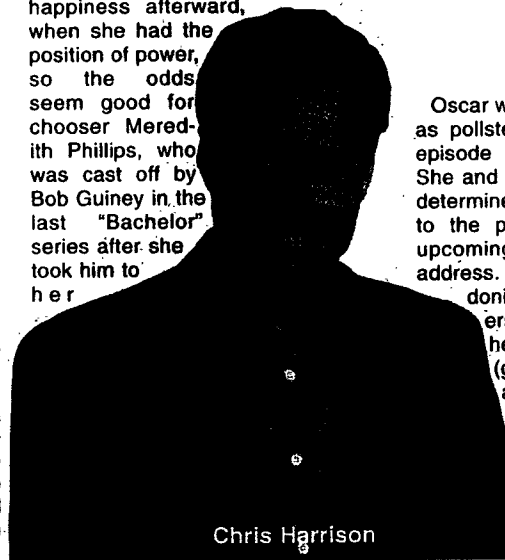

The O.C.

Kirsten (Kelly Rowan) is concerned about Sandy and Jimmy's (Peter Gallagher, Tate Donovan) new business arrangement in the new episode "The Links." Caleb (guest star Alan Dale) thwarts Hailey (guest star Amanda Righetti) through monetary means. Oliver's (guest star Taylor Handley) claim of attempted suicide impacts the relationship between Marissa and Ryan (Mischa Barton, Benjamin McKenzie).

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

The Bachelorette

First "Bachelor" runner-up (and now newlywed) Trista Rehn found happiness afterward, when she had the position of power, so the odds seem good for chooser Meredith Phillips, who was cast off by Bob Guiney in the last "Bachelor" series after she took him to her grandmother's gravesite. Phillips meets 25 contenders for her heart as the second season of this reality series begins. Chris Harrison returns as host.

Chris Harrison

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

The West Wing

Oscar winner Marlee Matlin returns as pollster Joey Lucas in the new episode "The Benign Prerogative." She and Toby (Richard Schiff) try to determine how the public might react to the president's (Martin Sheen) upcoming State of the Union address. A potential point is the pardoning of many eligible prisoners. Charlie (Dule Hill) fears he told too much to a woman (guest star Gabrielle Union) about to become a White House reporter.

8 p.m. on ESPN

College Basketball

With Roy Williams now guiding them, North Carolina's disastrous 8-20 season two years ago seems a distant memory. The Tar Heels exploded out of the gate, and their deep starting lineup featuring Rashad McCants, Jawad Williams and Sean May has them poised to compete for the top spot in the ACC. Maryland, meanwhile, is a work in progress, but knowing coach Gary Williams, he'll have his alma mater operating smoothly come March.

8:30 p.m. on 19-PBS

American Masters

Originally shown in 1984, shortly after the legendary choreographer's death, "Balanchine" airs in commemoration of the centennial of his birth. Frank Langella ("Dracula") narrates the profile of Russian-born dance icon George Balanchine, who staged more than 450 works — most of them during his time as the driving force behind the New York City Ballet. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Jewels" are excerpted.

Tru Calling

Tru (Eliza Dushku) has a close-to-home reason to prevent two murders in the new episode "Murder in the Morgue." If she doesn't succeed in changing fate, one victim will be her co-worker Davis (Zach Galifianakis), destined to be killed by a man (guest star Michael Teigen) whose bride (guest star Emily Holmes) is slain on their wedding day. The groom's background poses complications for Tru as she strives to stop the dual tragedies.

7:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Will & Grace

Geena Davis guest stars in the new episode "The Accidental Tsuris," whose subtitle spoofs the movie that earned the actress an Oscar, "The Accidental Tourist." She plays Grace's (Debra Messing) older sister, who has a habit of taking advantage of her sibling — prompting Grace to lay down the law. Karen (Megan Mullally) reconsiders Lyle's (guest star John Cleese) marriage proposals. Minnie Driver also guest stars.

8 p.m. on HALL

Movie: The Cutting Edge

This 1992 romantic comedy stars D.B. Sweeney as a hockey player forced to quit because of an injury. He is recruited to be the new partner for a rich, spoiled figure skater (Moir Kelly) and they immediately clash. Despite the friction, they work hard to qualify for the Olympics ... and, in the process, fall in love. Roy Dotrice co-stars as their coach.

Friday Best Bets

7 p.m. and DSC Gold Star Racing

A Rochester, N.Y., family dedicated to the sport of go-kart racing is followed as this unscripted miniseries premieres. After the youngsters win the championships in their respective racing clubs, they're eager to move on to national contests in Pittsburgh — but their parents aren't so sure about letting them go.

7 p.m. on FAM Movie: She-Devil

The teaming of Meryl Streep and Roseanne Barr may seem bizarre, but the performers are on screen together only for three minutes or so in director Susan Seidelman's ("Desperately Seeking Susan") 1989 comedy inspired by a British miniseries. Streep plays a glamorous romance novelist who steals the husband (Ed Begley Jr.) of a dowdy housewife (Barr), prompting the jilted woman to hatch a unique revenge.

7 p.m. and TNT Movie: The Goodbye Girl

The original 1977 screen version of Neil Simon's comedy earned an Oscar for Richard Dreyfuss, whose role is assumed by Jeff Daniels ("Dumb and Dumber") in this new remake. Subtlety complicates a struggling actor to share a relatively small New York apartment with a single mother (Patricia Heaton, "Everybody Loves Raymond") — who doesn't much care for actors — and her precocious daughter (Hallie Kate Eisenberg).

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Boston Public

An overachiever isn't happy about having to share the presidency of the honor society, so she files a lawsuit against the school in the new episode

"Chapter Seventy-Seven." Marla (Loretta Devine) begins to have second thoughts about undergoing in vitro fertilization.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS JAG

Mac (Catherine Bell) bucks the evidence against her client as she represents a recovering-alcoholic petty officer accused of murder in the new episode "Good Intentions." The defendant admits to drinking again, but a chaplain (guest star Steven Flynn) supplies Mac with useful information as she squares off with Harm (David James Elliott) in court.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Third Watch

Felons dressed as police officers put the public — and real cops — on edge in the new episode "Black & Blue." Sully (Skip Sudduth) is among the authentic officers giving supposed peers a more-than-casual glance. Kim and Doherty (Kim Raver, Eddie Cibrian) try to keep their revived romance a secret. Monroe (Nia Long) comforts a youngster who saw his mother being assaulted.

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"FREDDY VS. JASON": The icons of "A Nightmare on Elm Street" and "Friday the 13th" clash in this predictably gory merging of the two horror franchises. Robert Englund is back as Freddy Krueger, the knife-fingered man of nightmares, who faces off against hockey-masked Jason Voorhees (Ken Kirzinger) as they fight over potential victims. Playing some of their mutual targets are Monica Keena ("Dawson's Creek"), singer Kelly Rowland and Jason Ritter ("Joan of Arcadia"). DVD extras: theatrical trailer and TV spots; audio commentary by Englund, Kirzinger and director Ronny Yu; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; alternate opening and ending; storyboard-to-scene comparison; music video; photo gallery. ** (R: AS, P, GV)

JOHNNY ENGLISH: Rowan Atkinson ("Mr. Bean") gets to play a faux 007 in this engaging spy spoof with a script by Neal Purvis and Robert Wade, who also wrote the last two James Bond films. Atkinson plays a British agent who isn't at the top of the pecking order, but rises to it after many of his fellow spies are eliminated. His mission is to retrieve the stolen crown jewels. John Malkovich and singer Natalie Imbruglia also star. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; "Observation Test"; "Spy Challenge"; "Identikit"; "Spy Profiler." *** (PG: AS, P, V)

"SWIMMING POOL": While paying a visit to her publisher (Charles Dance) in the south of France, a mystery writer (Charlotte Rampling) gets inspiration - and more - from his enigmatic daughter (Ludvine Saghier) in director-screenwriter Francois Ozon's acclaimed, almost hypnotic melodrama. The women's clashing outlooks and behaviors create a scenario that could result in murder. *** (R and unrated versions: AS, N, P, V)

"BUFFALO SOLDIERS": Before the Berlin Wall collapses, U.S. soldiers stationed in Germany get involved in black-market scheming in this irreverent, "Hogan's Heroes"-ish comedy based on Robert O'Connor's novel. Joaquin Phoenix plays the ringleader, who also is dallying with the wife (Elizabeth McGovern) of his exiting commanding officer (Ed Harris). The new superior officer (Scott Glenn), who has an alluring daughter (Anna Paquin, "X-Men"), isn't quite as willing to look the other way. ** (R: AS, P, V)

"CURB YOUR ENTHUSIASM: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": The award-winning HBO comedy series, following the fictionalized life and times of perpetually dour writer-producer Larry David ("Seinfeld"), comes to DVD in a two-disc set that compiles the first 10 episodes. Many of David's celebrity friends, including Julia Louis-Dreyfus and Richard Lewis, have cameos; Cheryl Hines plays David's wife. DVD extras: audio commentary by David, Hines, co-star Jeff Garlin and director Robert B. Weide; the initial "Larry David: Curb Your Enthusiasm" special; Bob Costas-conducted interview with David. (Not rated: AS, P)

"LOST IN SPACE: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": John and Maureen Robinson (Guy Williams, June Lockhart) and their children, along with astronaut Don West (Mark Goddard), take off on a mission - which is thwarted by scheming Dr. Smith (Jonathan

On TV

'Alias' creator Abrams offers 'Full Disclosure'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

At opposite ends of the spectrum lie two of the most viscerally satisfying of TV experiences. On the one hand, there's that moment when some great plot twist is revealed, and you leap out of your easy chair, do a victory dance around the living room and shout, "I knew it! I knew it!" Then there's the other moment, when your jaw drops open, you shout, "No way!" and clasp your hands over your mouth.

Depending on how good a guesser you are - or how assiduously you seek spoilers on the Internet - the Sunday, Jan. 11, episode of ABC's spy drama "Alias" may offer thrills from one extreme to the other.

Called "Full Disclosure" and written by series co-producer Jesse Alexander, it sets out to answer - if not once and for all, at least for the moment - what happened to CIA agent Sydney Bristow (Jennifer Garner) during the two-year gap in her memory. In last season's finale, after a bone-crushing fight, Sydney woke up two years later in Hong Kong, thinking it was just the next day. Very quickly she learned otherwise.

Most shocking was the revelation that her love, CIA agent Michael Vaughn (Michael Vartan), thinking she was dead, had met and married NSC agent Lauren Reed (Melissa George).

It's been a tangled trail this season, as Sydney has traversed the world and the inner workings of her own subconscious in search of answers about the evil Covenant, her alter-ego Julia Thorne, the enigmatic room "47" and the mysterious scar on her belly.

Some TV shows might have teased all season before answering big questions like these, but "Alias" creator J.J. Abrams just couldn't wait that long.

"It felt like at this moment in the show, the midpoint of the year, that we had this story that this allows us to tell," he says. "It sends the story in a direction that we needed to go. There's nothing more frustrating to me than shows or movies that raise provocative questions only to abandon you, like, 'Go talk about it and figure it out.'"

"That's not to say that you always want all the answers. Part of the fun is not getting all the answers, filling in the blanks yourself to some degree."

"But I feel, if you don't provide viewers with some concrete specifics, they start to get disinterested and feel, 'Oh, it's a lot of hot air, smoke and mirrors,' and not pay attention."

"You have to reward your fans."

This is nothing new for Abrams, who upended the show's original double-agent premise partway through its second season, in a big episode that aired after the Super Bowl. Then he did it again in last season's finale. But however the circumstances within the show change, the fundamental theme remains the same, the idea of having an "Alias." It's no different in "Full Disclosure."

"That was always the idea," Abrams says, "the issue of identity and the question of, 'How's Sydney going to figure out ultimately who she is, where does she come from, what's her destiny?' That, to us, is always very interesting."

The show's large revolving cast of characters and inherent complexity - with shifting family ties, multiple identities, undercover guises and fabulously roccoco mysteries - can be off-putting to novice viewers, who may feel like they need a reference book to keep up.

Luckily, for those willing to invest the time and money, the current fad for DVD boxed sets of TV shows is there to help. The first season of "Alias" came out in early September; the second was released in December.

"If people are watching it only on DVD," Abrams says, "that's fine with me."

"Full Disclosure" ends with a moment that could elicit either or both of the two reactions mentioned above. Asked what he hopes for, Abrams says, "I hope people feel that rush of possibility of what comes next."

"Although there are some new questions that are posed, and there's a big twist at the end, the thing that was the most fun for me on this story is it's finally allowed us to tie together these many loose ends. If you've been watching the show and trying to figure it out, this show really does answer so many of the questions and then it raises others."

"To me, it feels like a crucial tent-pole episode for the year, that everything was building to this moment. Then there's this roller coaster because of it, this ride we're going to be on until the end of the year."

Following the startling revelations of last season's finale, fans are no doubt waiting to see how Abrams will top that this year - and he's even starting to scare himself.

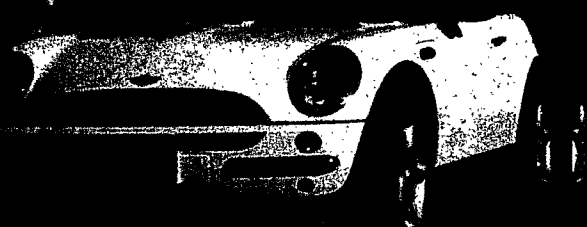

"As we've been talking through ways to take the idea that we have for the end, there have been some ideas recently that are so extreme that if we actually dare to do some of these things, we'd have to be really careful that we don't cross the line."

"Our audience is, for better or worse, really smart. They dissect and analyze in a way that they can sense when something isn't working right. Some of these ideas are so wild that how we execute them is ultimately as important as the ideas themselves."

Answers are provided for CIA agent Sydney Bristow (Jennifer Garner) in her search for her memory's missing two years in a new episode of ABC's spy drama "Alias" Sunday.
